LUXEMBOURG—The European Captive Insurance and Reinsurance Owners Association elected a new board of directors as its annual general meeting held on Nov. 26, the group announced Monday.

The directors elected for a two-year period are: Guenter Droese, chairman of Frankfurt-Germany-based Deutsche Bank A.G.; Eric Bloem, vice chairman of Amsterdam, Netherlands-based Heineken International; Hans-Juergen Allerdissen, managing director of Berlin-based Deutsche Bahn A.G.; Hans-Joachim Fippinger, vice chairman of Essen, Germany-based Evonik Degussa GmbH; and Edwin Meyer, general manager of Luxembourg-based Arcelor Mittal.

Since the association has members from a number of countries, the annual general meeting nominated country representatives who will serve as contact persons for national authorities, ECIROA said in a news release.

ECIROA, formed in Luxembourg in August to serve as a forum and advocacy group for European captive owners, currently has 25 members from Denmark, France, Germany, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Sweden, Switzerland and the U.K.
